Case study – Making Sustainable Procurement Second Nature

The drive for sustainability is changing the way governments around Australia and worldwide operate, and Waverley Council is no exception. Underpinned by best-practice research, collaboration and engagement, Waverley's 'Making Sustainable Procurement Second Nature' Project is successfully integrating corporate responsibility principles into its supply chain systems, process, decisions and culture to achieve environmental and social objectives and contribute to Sustainable Development Goal (SDG) 12 'Sustainable consumption & Production'. Importantly, the project has the capacity to drive sustainability outside of Council's direct operations.
